

GEORGES DUBOEU F

2009 Brouilly
Château de la Perriere

89-90 points

"The 2009 Brouilly Chateau de la Perriere – which Duboeuf credits with a "very traditional elevage," and which I tasted from tank – smells highly expressively of fresh blueberry, dark cherry and diverse pungent herbs; comes to the palate generously juicy but with an underlying firmness and with bitter notes of cherry pit and herb complementing its ripe fruit; and finishes with invigorating tartness, and pungency, along with a suggestion of stony mineral interest that befits its name (which actually is that of the proprietors). This should be well worth following for 3-4 years."
