WINEMAKING

Harvest took place when the grapes reached optimum ripeness. At the winery, the grapes were hand- sorted and then taken to the press. The must was chilled down to 50°F before racking the juice into the fermenters. Fermentation took place at low temperatures in order to maintain the fruit flavors and preserve their delicate aromas. When fermentation ended, the wine was left on it's lees for a period of time before bottling.

TASTING NOTES

Attractive, bright yellow color with greenish hues. The wine has a surprisingly fresh perfume of white flowers and orange blossoms with citric notes. Its flavor is rich and mouth filling with notes of ripe stone fruit and traces of minerality. The finish is rich, ripe and very pleasant.
